

I found some Turkey breast steaks for the bank melting price of £0.88 and as I ended up flat bound by the weather yesterday we decided to play in the kitchen. Chicken Parmigiana is one thing, but we think we took it to another level. But I guess we would really?!

Turkey Steaks

Ingredients:-

Turkey Breast steaks

Bread Crumbs (Gluten free in our case)

Toasted and ground Hazelnuts (The last of this years foraged nuts ? Sobs a little!)

Grated Italian style hard cheese and grated mature Cheddar.

1 Egg, beaten

Dried Parsley

Dried Basil

Milk

Flour

Oil to fry

Salt & Pepper

Chilli flakes

Method:-

(1) Toast the Hazelnuts in their shells at 180C for 10 minutes on a tray and then allow to cool.

(2) Crack the shells and chop the nuts in a food processor.

(3) Mix the Breadcrumbs, half of the grated Italian style Cheese, Parsley and nuts and put in a bowl.

(4) Season the flour with Salt & Pepper, Chilli Flakes and put in a bowl.

(5) Mix the beaten Egg with a little Milk to make an Egg wash and add to a bowl.

(6) Heat the Oil in a large frying pan.

(7) Dip each Turkey steak firstly in seasoned Flour, then the Egg wash and finally the Breadcrumb mix.

(8) Fry on both sides on a moderate heat until the breadcrumbs are golden.

(9) Spoon a little Passata sauce over each steak.

(10) Sprinkle grated Cheddar over the top and then Italian style Cheese and a sprinkling of dried Basil.

(11) Grill until the Cheese has melted and browned slightly.

We really enjoyed the intense flavours and the Turkey was both tender and moist. Serve with scalloped chips and a dressed salad perhaps?
